PREFATORY REMARK.

The term musical "Forms" of which progressive Models are here given, is adopted in the sense of musical "Structural Designs," and not musical "Styles."

The inevitable incompleteness of the list of illustrations is partly accounted for in the note upon Irregular Designs (p.39), which see.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNS.

v = the harmony of the Dominant, or 5th Scale-step of the tonality.

r = the harmony of the Tonic, or 1st Scale-step.

|| = a perfect Cadence in the course of the Composition.

|| = the perfect Cadence at the end of the Composition.

v = an ordinary (light) Semicadence.

V = a heavy Semicadence.

MODELS OF MUSICAL FORMS.

---

THE PHRASE.

Consisting of four ordinary measures in moderate tempo.

Ex.1. Moderato.

* MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No.4.

See also Examples 2 to 12. Two-measure Phrases (slow tempo and large measures) in Examples 16; 18; Example 28, Part I. Example 35, Principal Theme:.. Example 36, Codetta II.

Eight-measure Phrases: Example 34, 2nd. Subordinate Theme.-

Cadence-chord falling upon the secondary accent.

Ex. 7.
MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No. 45.

See also Example 15, Phrase 2. Example 18, Phrase 1. Example 35, Phrases 1, 2.

Cadence-chord falling upon an unaccented beat.

Ex. 8a.
CHOPIN, Mazurka 3.

Ex. 8b.
CHOPIN, Mazurka 8.

See also Example 4; Example 16, Phrase 1. Example 20, Phrases 1, 2, 3. Example 23, Phrase 1.

Cadence on second 8th-note.

Ex. 9.
MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No. 33.

See also Example 24, Part II., Phrases 1, 2, 3, 4. Example 28, Part I., Phrase 1. Example 33, Phrase 1. Example 33, 1st. Subordinate Theme, Phrases 1, 2, 3.

Cadence on last beat of the measure.

Ex. 10.
MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No. 48.

See also Example 8b. Example 18, Phrases 2, 3.

THE REPEATED PHRASE.

Cadence retained with no essential alteration.

(See Table at the end.)

Ex.11.

Phrase. Repetition.

FOLK-SONG.

V I V I

See also Example 12. Example 28, Coda. Example 34, Codetta.

THE PERIOD (or Double-Phrase.)

Firstly, the Period of "Parallel construction."

Evolved out of the "Repeated Phrase," by differentiation of the Cadences (See Table.)

Comparison of Rep. Phrase with Par. Period.

Ex.12. Repeated Phrase.

Phrase. Perf. Cad. Repetition. Perf. Cad.

V—I V—I

Ex.13. Parallel Period.

Antecedent Phrase. Semi-cadence. Consequent Phrase. Perf. Cad.

V V I

* BEETHOVEN, Op.33, No.3. ** MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No.35.

See also Ex.24, Part I. Ex.25, Part I. Ex.26, Part I. Ex.29, Part I.
Ex.33, first 8 measures. Ex.34, first 8 measures.

Secondly, the Period of "Opposite" (or Contrary) construction.

Ex.14. Antecedent Phrase. Semicad. Perf.Cad.

Consequent Phrase.

"TONE-RELATIONS," Lesson 48, No. 6. (GOETSCHUIS.)

Thirdly, the Period of "Contrasting" construction.

Ex.15. Antecedent Phrase. Semicad. Perf.Cad.

Consequent Phrase.

MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No.7, Part III.

See also Example 23, Parts I. and II. Example 26, Part II. Example 27, Parts I. and II. Example 28, Part I. Example 34, 1st. Subordinate Theme.

THE PERIOD WITH REPEATED CONSEQUENT PHRASE.

The Cadence of Consequent Phrase retained, with no essential alteration.

Ex.16.

MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No. 19, Part III.

See also Example 29, Part III.

The Period with repeated Antecedent Phrase, or with a repetition of both Antecedent and Consequent [comparatively rare] is constructed on the same principle.

THE PERIOD WITH CONSEQUENT-GROUP.

The Cadences of the Consequent Phrases [Nos. 2 and 3] essentially differentiated; thus constituting a "Reproduction," instead of "Repetition" of the Consequent Phrase.

Ex.17.

FOLK-SONG.

See also Example 29, Part. V.

The Period with Antecedent-group [rare] is constructed on the same principle.

THE GROUP OF PHRASES.

At least three in number; frequently four, five, or more Phrases, in unbroken succession.

Ex. 18. Andante.

E V I

MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No. 16.

See also Example 28, Part III. Example 29, Part IV. Example 35, Principal Theme. Example 36, Subordinate Theme.

THE REPEATED PERIOD.

No essential alteration of the Cadence.
Compare Example 11. (See final Table.)

Ex. 19. forte.

HAYDN, Symphony II. (Peters Ed.)

THE DOUBLE-PERIOD (or Quadruple-Phrase.)

Evolved, in Parallel construction, out of the "Repeated Period," by differentiation of 2nd. and 4th. Cadences. Characteristic traits: Phrase 3 like Phrase 1; and no complete interruption in the course. See final Table. Compare with Exs. 12. & 13.

Ex. 20.

See also Example 29, Part II. Example 33, 1st. Subordinate Theme. Example 36, Principal Theme.

DOUBLE-PERIOD OF CONTRASTING CONSTRUCTION.

Rare; Phrase 3 unlike Phrase 1;
see Example 24, Part II. Example 28, Part II.

THE DOUBLE-PERIOD, EXTENDED TO FIVE OR MORE PHRASES.

Distinctive traits, as above: 3rd. Phrase like 1st. Phrase, and no complete separation of the series of Phrases.

Ex. 21.

THE BI-PARTITE OR TWO-PART SONG-FORM.

PRIMARY DESIGN.

Equal Parts, each in Period-form; evolved out of the "Double-Period" by contrasting construction, and complete break [Cadence] in the centre. Compare with Example 20, and Example 19. See final Table.

Perf. Cad. || Coda.

(Phrase, repeated and extended.)

The second system of the musical score continues the melody in G minor. It features a series of eighth and sixteenth notes, with some measures containing triplets. The notation includes a treble clef, a key signature of two flats, and a common time signature. The melody is written on a single staff.

MENDELSSOHN, Song Without Words, No. 46.

See also Songs Without Words, Nos. 40, 25.

This example also illustrates the Introduction, Interlude, Retransition, and Coda. See Example 22, Codetta; and Example 24, Prelude and Postlude.

For illustration of REPEATED PARTS, see Exs. 27; 28; 29; Ex. 33, 2nd. Subordinate Theme. Ex. 34, 2nd. Subordinate Theme.

THE FIVE-PART SONG-FORM

Evolved out of the "Three-Part Form" by Repetition, or Reproduction, of Parts II. and III.; and distinguished by more or less essential difference between Part II. and Part IV. See final Table.

Part I. (Period-form.)Part II.

(Double-Period.)

Part III. (Period, rep. Consequent.)(Repetition of Consequent Phr.)Perf. Cad.Part IV. (transposed and abbreviated ver-sion of Part II.) (Phrase-Group.)Part V. (modified version of Parts I. and III.) (Per. with Consequent -Group.)Semicad.

THE SONG - FORM WITH TRIO,

OR MINUET WITH TRIO.

An enlargement of the Three-Part Song-Form, effectuated by compounding different [though kindred] Song Forms. See final Table.

Ex.30. See Beethoven, Pianoforte Sonatas Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4; the third movement of each ("Minuet" or "Scherzo.")

THE SONG-FORM WITH TWO TRIOS.

THE SECOND RONDO-FORM.

Evolved out of the "First Rondo-form" by expanding the 1st. Division (i.e. the Principal Theme) into a complete, though concise, First Rondo-form. Consists of a Principal Theme in alternation with two different Subordinate Themes. Similar in design to the "Song-form with Two Trios." See final Table.

THE THIRD RONDO FORM.

Evolved out of the "Second Rondo-form" by adding a Recapitulation of the entire first Division. A very broad expansion of the Three-Part Song-form. Consists of a Principal Theme in alternation with three Subordinate Themes, the third one of which is similar to the first Subordinate Theme, See Table.

THE SONATINE-ALLEGRO FORM.

Derived from the "Third Rondo-form" by a process of contraction and concentration. Instead of the "Alternation" of a Principal with various Subordinate Themes, is substituted the "Union of Principal and one Subordinate Theme" on an equal footing. A broad expansion of the Two-Part Song-form. Closely related in design to the Second Rondo-form. Consists of a Principal Theme, Transition, Subordinate Theme (and Coda) as "Exposition;" followed (after a brief Interlude or Re-transition.) by the "Recapitulation." See Table.

THE IRREGULAR DESIGNS.

The foregoing pages only contain examples of the Regular musical designs, arranged in progressive order, according to their generally increasing dimensions, and along a line of consecutive structural development. But a great number of intermediate and irregular varieties of form exist which it is needless to illustrate, inasmuch as they must necessarily either admit of demonstration as modifications of these Regular designs, or will evade demonstration altogether, as lacking those elements of logical coherency which constitute the vital and only condition of "Form" in musical composition. To these latter comparatively "formless" designs belong: all the Group-forms (of which one typical illustration is given in Ex. 18); the Fantasia; the Potpourri; and, as a rule, all so-called Tone-poems, and Program-music generally. On the other hand, those Irregular designs which nevertheless admit of analysis according to the fundamental principles of musical logic, may be classified in the following four-fold manner.

1. As representing an AUGMENTATION of the design. (Examples: Sonatine-allegro with additional recurrence of Principal Theme at the end. Sonata-allegro with two successive Subordinate Themes. Any higher form with additional Introduction, Interludes [e.g. the "Tutti" of the Concerto], or independent Coda.)

2. As representing an ABBREVIATION of the design. (Examples: Sonata-allegro in which the Prin. Theme is omitted after the development; etc.)

3. As representing a DISLOCATION of the members of the design. (Examples: A Development after the Prin. Theme instead of before it. Any alteration of the arrangement of members in the Recapitulation.)

4. As representing a MIXTURE of Rondo and Sonata-allegro designs. (Examples: The 2nd. and 3rd. Rondo-form with a Development instead of the 2nd. Subord. Theme. Sonata-allegro design with new middle Theme instead of development.)
